CONSULTANTS LTD

CARING FOR MENTAL HEALTH

Welcome to Sinclair-Strong Consultants Ltd

We are a Kent based psychology service offering high quality assessment and treatment for individuals experiencing anxiety, depression, trauma and other mental health difficulties.

Our client-focused service is run by Drs Neil Sinclair and Linda Strong, Chartered Clinical Psychologists with extensive knowledge and experience in adult mental health. Therapy sessions are offered in private consulting rooms at Churchill Square in Kings Hill.

The aim of our service is to promote psychological well-being that enables individuals to maximise their potential, cope with challenging circumstances and live fulfilling lives. Assessment and treatment is offered to individuals, couples and older children, with an emphasis on problem-solving and a collaborative approach. This is achieved through regular one-to-one sessions using evidence based assessments and therapeutic interventions to address current difficulties.

Background

Sinclair-Strong Consultants Ltd has provided a private psychology service in Kent since 2001. The principles, Neil Sinclair and Linda Strong, are registered with the Health & Care Professions Council and British Psychological Society and have over 40 years' experience between them. This husband and wife partnership began their careers in Perth, Western Australia before moving to England in 1996. As well as setting up a private practice, they have both worked for the NHS for several years, as well as non-profit organizations, government departments and the private sector.

Sinclair-Strong Consultants Ltd also employs the services of other Clinical, Counselling, Forensic and Assistant Psychologists to ensure you receive prompt and effective treatment. They offer a confidential service on a private basis for individuals experiencing a wide range of difficulties including:

- Anxiety and phobias
- Depression
- Trauma & Bereavement
- Interpersonal difficulties and self-esteem issues
- Learning disabilities, challenging behaviours and Autism Spectrum Disorders (including Asperger's Syndrome).
- Medico-legal assessments and reports

Before treatment begins, you will be offered an initial assessment, during which we will clarify your current therapeutic needs and answer any questions or concerns. We will also discuss the goals you wish to achieve and how we can work together to achieve them. Following the assessment, which can take one to two sessions, you will be given a treatment contract, which will include an indication of the number of sessions required and the type of treatment to be offered. Typically, 8-12 therapy sessions are recommended followed by a review to ascertain progress. Appointments usually occur on a weekly basis initially, before gradually reducing in frequency as treatment goals are achieved.

Once treatment is complete, we like to ensure you continue to make progress and are available for a six-monthly review session if required. You will also have the opportunity to provide feedback to us via a standard feedback questionnaire or online link.

Our Team

Dr Neil Sinclair BAppSc GradDipSS MPsyCh PhD CPsychol has practiced as a Clinical Psychologist since 1982 and accepts referrals within general adult mental health and primary care (GP). Neil also has extensive experience in learning disability, community and forensic settings, and specialises in the assessment and treatment of severe challenging and offending behaviour, including clinical risk management. He has comprehensive knowledge of service provision including National Minimal Standards, Clinical Governance and Programme design and implementation. Dr Sinclair has lectured at a number of Universities in the UK and Australia, held senior Clinical Psychology and Clinical Services posts, and has prepared medico-legal reports for Criminal Proceedings including Crown Court.

Dr Linda Strong BAppSc GradDipPsych GradDipCS DPsych AFBPsS CPsychol is a Clinical Psychologist and EMDR Europe Consultant/Supervisor with broad experience in adult mental health. Linda specializes in the assessment and treatment of psychological trauma, depression and anxiety disorders using both cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT) and Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing (EMDR). She also provides clinical supervision to other mental health practitioners and has been invited as a guest speaker to address several professional organisations. Linda has worked in several settings including in-patient psychiatric hospitals, community mental health teams within the NHS, the Western Australian Police Service and a number of private mental health facilities. Within the last fifteen years, Linda has also developed particular expertise in medico-legal assessment of personal injury and provision of court reports as an expert witness.

Dr Georgia Juett BSc (Hons) DClinPsy AFBPsS CPsychol qualified as a Clinical Psychologist in 1997 and has practiced in the NHS for 22 years before moving into the Private Sector in 2019. She has worked primarily within the Adult Mental Health specialty and also more recently with Older Adults, with a strong focus on providing specialist psychological assessment and evidence-based treatment of depression, the spectrum of anxiety disorders, PTSD and personality problems. She is also experienced in providing cognitive behaviour therapy for work-related stress and difficulties adjusting to long term medical conditions and associated disabilities. Georgia has an interest in learning disabilities and autism and has published research relating to challenging behaviour and direct care staff in community residential settings. She brings with her a wealth of experience in consultation to teams and training others in therapeutic skills. Georgia is also an experienced clinical supervisor of mental health practitioners in various mental health settings providing regular input to the local Clinical Psychology Doctorate Training Scheme.

Dr Emma Reilly MA Hons PGDip DClinPsy qualified as a Clinical Psychologist in 2008. Emma has worked in both the NHS and independent sector across England and Scotland and has spent several years working as a locum psychologist with the aim of developing a diverse psychological skillset, alongside key areas of speciality. In her early career, Emma specialised in Neuropsychology, working with adults with neurodegenerative conditions, acquired brain injury, and functional neurological conditions. Her work had a particular focus on cognitive rehabilitation, and the use of Acceptance & Commitment Therapy (ACT) and Cognitive Behaviour Therapy (CBT) to help clients improve their quality of life by making changes consistent with their values and goals. Emma's work in this field also sparked an interest in using Applied Behaviour Analysis (ABA) to help clients overcome behaviours of concern. Her interest and skills in this area were further developed through working with clients with Learning Disabilities, using ABA within a framework of Positive Behaviour Support (PBS). From this work, Emma developed a strong interest in Human Rights and the assessment and promotion of mental capacity. For the last few years, Emma has worked in an Autism specialist residential service and is continuing this work as part of the SSC KAMCAS Team

Types of Therapy

Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (CBT) is a popular psychological therapy with extensive evidence for its effectiveness, which is used for the treatment of a variety of mental health problems such as Depression, Anxiety, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), Personality Disorders and Self-Esteem Issues. CBT recognises that negative thoughts can affect our mood and wellbeing, and are often distorted and unrealistic. CBT therapists help individuals identify and change maladaptive patterns in thinking (cognitions), behaviour and feelings by firstly recognising the interaction between the three components, then developing alternative, more adaptive and realistic patterns. This is accomplished by questioning assumptions and beliefs underpinning the maladaptive process, challenging and restructuring maladaptive thinking, facing previously avoided situations and activities, and developing new ways of thinking, interacting and behaving. The process of change requires good collaboration between therapist and client, and homework assignments are an integral component of therapy.

Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing (EMDR) was first developed by Francine Shapiro in the 1980s as a treatment for trauma related psychological problems, particularly Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Over time it has gained popularity with clinicians and is now used to treat a variety of problems associated with unresolved life experiences including trauma related disorders, such as driving phobia. EMDR is an adaptive information processing treatment which incorporates a standardised protocol consisting of eight phases. Preparation for EMDR is essential and includes developing methods of relaxation and strategies to deal with the distress often associated with painful traumatic memories. During EMDR treatment, memories, beliefs and physical sensations associated with past trauma are identified. Then, using either side-to-side eye movements or another form of bilateral stimulation (non-intrusive), disturbing material is 'reprocessed' until the individual can think of the memory without undue distress. In the final stage of treatment, a positive belief about the person is linked to the traumatic memory (e.g. 'I did the best I could' or 'I'm ok just the way I am').

Referral Procedure

Appointment Availability

Referrals are accepted direct from clients, GPs, Consultant Psychiatrists or other mental health practitioners. Clinic appointments are available Monday to Friday from 9:00am to 5:00pm. However, early morning and after hours' appointments can be arranged upon request. Under exceptional circumstances home appointments can also be arranged. Please speak to your clinician to discuss your requirements

Fees

Standard one-hour therapy session fees are between £110 to £130 per hour session depending upon the qualification and experience of the clinician. All clinicians are registered with major health insurance providers such as BUPA, AXA PPP, Aviva, and WPA.

Billing Procedure

Invoices are rendered at the end of each month for all services, payable within 7 days. Our preference is to receive payment by BACS (Account number 68230760; Sort code 08-92-50), although cheques are also accepted (made payable to Sinclair-Strong Consultants Ltd). Late payment will be subject to interest in accordance with UK Late Payment Legislation. For all enquiries please contact our accounts department — accounts@sinclairstrong.co.uk

Cancellation Policy

We would appreciate at least 24 hours' notice prior to cancellation of appointments, otherwise a cancellation fee will apply. Cancellation of appointments should be avoided if possible as regular attendance is extremely important for therapeutic change to occur. Therapeutic contracts will be reviewed after the third missed appointment.
